

Get the Tasty Careers advantage

We're already the go-organisation for businesses seeking advice on high quality vocational education and training for their staff.

Our interactive Tasty Careers website www.tastycareers.org.uk provides prospective students with comprehensive information on the best courses and qualifications to get into food manufacturing – now the UK's largest manufacturing sector employing over 400,000 people in everything from engineering, food science, production and logistics to management and professional business disciplines including marketing and HR.

Through the Tasty Careers website and industry outreach programme, we showcase the FE and HE institutions with industry-accepted standards of expertise in specific areas of food manufacturing learning delivery. Gaining industry recognition for the quality of your learning provision means we can bring cohorts of new students right to your door.

Right now, the door is open for more colleges and universities to join our Tasty Careers education network.

So if you believe you're already among the best when it comes to food or drink industry-related study, we want to hear from you.
